SAN PEDRO DE LOVAGO, Nicaragua — Contra commanders surrendered their weapons Wednesday to President Violeta Barrios de Chamorro in a ceremony hailing the end of a civil war that left 30,000 people dead.

Chamorro accepted the weapons from about 100 top rebel commanders lead by Israel Galeano in San Pedro de Lovago, 100 miles east of the capital. "The struggle has been to establish a government of laws in this country,"

Salt Palace beer ads to comply with law

SALT LAKE CITY — While new plastic panels reading simply "Adolph Coors Co." should be ready to replace advertisements for the beer company's products on the Salt Palace scoreboard within a few weeks, nobody is throwing out the old signs vet.

The backlit brand-name beer advertisements that hung for years beneath the Utah Jazz scoreboards were shrouded in black plastic last March after changes in the state's liquor laws outlawed beer advertisements.

Beer companies plan to skirt the statute by hanging the new signs, which The Bureau of Air Quality will conduct a study, part of which will cost almost $2,000, but haven't given up hope that they'll be able to advertise their product next season.

The Salt Lake County Attorney's office has been told that replacing the name of a beer with the name of the company producing it was OK.

Deputy County Attorney Gavin Anderson said,"Those laws prohibit the advertising of beer and do not prohibit the advertising of corporations or businesses.

The new plastic panels will be installed as soon as they are completed by the out-of-state firm commissioned to manufacture them.

Mandela rejects King's peaceful view

ATLANTA — Nelson Mandela paid tribute to Martin Luther King Jr. in the slain civil rights leader's hometown Wednesday, but again refused to adopt King's non-violent approach in the struggle for black rights.

Civil rights and government leaders staged a jubilant welcome for Mandela in Atlanta, which became the cradle of the American civil rights movement under King's leadership.

Some local civil rights officials have suggested Mandela should follow King's philosophy of non-violence. But Mandela wasted no time reminding them of his view that black South Africans face a different battle than the one King led. "Unlike you, we are still under the grip of white supremacy," Mandela told the airport gathering. To reporters he added: "Non-violence is a good policy when conditions permit.' At Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport, Gov. Joe Frank Harris, a white conservative Democrat, called Mandela an inspiration, and welcomed him to "the birthplace of equality and justice for all of America."

Aftershocks continue in northern Iran

TEHRAN, Iran - Aftershocks rumbled through northern Iran on Wednesday, shaking buildings and killing a relief worker who was trying to dig out bodies buried under debris by last week's earthquake.

By KAREN JENSEN

As part of KBYU-FM's 30th Anniversary Celebration, "Classical 89" will add a unique dimension to both events with actor Edgar Weinstock appearing at the events and impersonating Beethoven in both genius and art, Cronenwett said. "With touseled dark mane, severe scowl and a two-day growth of beard, combined with authentic late 18th century garb, you may find yourself looking twice to see if it isn't Ludwig van Beethoven reincarnated." Cronenwett said.

Weinstock's extensive study of Beethoven gives him the ability to stav in character and tailor his impersonation to any type of audience, Cronenwett said.

"I was attracted to Beethoven when I discovered through my reading that the composer was an outlaw like me," Weinstock said.

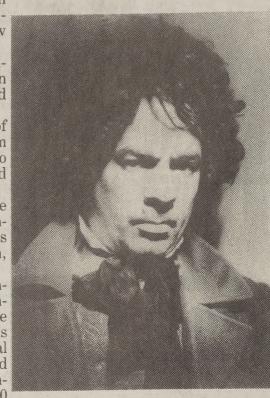

Weinstock, an actor and stage director, first portrayed Beethoven for the San Francisco Symphony and radio station KKHI in 1978 "I said I would not make fun of

He will appear at the closing concert of the "Young Musicians Summerfest" on Saturday at 2 p.m. in the De Jong Concert Hall, HFAC. His Utah Symphony Beethoven Festival appearances include autograph and photograph sessions outside Symphony Hall at "Plazafest" June 27-30 from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. just prior to the 8 p.m. symphony performances.

Pipe organ to accompany silent movie

By KAREN JENSEN

Universe Staff Writer

Lovers of silence, music and the way things used to be will enjoy the showing of a Buster Keaton silent movie Friday in the Joseph Smith Auditorium, said a BYU publicist. The Music Department will show "The General," a 1927 silent movie, as a part of its Young Musicians Summerfest and has invited the public to attend also, said

Marshiela Newell. "We want to present 'The General' the way the old theaters would have done it in 1927, the date of its original release," said Walter Birkedahl, director of the Summer-

"Silent movies made use of an accompanist, who played live, usually on a theater organ," said Birkedahl. "For this showing, we will use a pipe organ played by Michael Ohman. No written music will be available; the organist will simply watch the movie and improvise as it progresses.' Ohman has made many recordings for new releases of old movies and was the resident organist for the Telluride Film Festival in Colorado, Newell said. As curator of organs at BYU, he supervises the installation and maintenance of all

"The General" received many bad reviews in 1927, but it has becomeoneof the few enduring silent movie classics, said Birkedahl. "Set in the Civil War era, it features Buster Keaton as a train engineer trying to get involved in the war. It includes lots of thrills, train scenes and other Indiana Jones material," he said.

The Young Musicians Summerfest is a conference for high-schoolage musicians to help them improve their skills, said Kent Stuver, assistant to Birkedahl.

"The students work very hard during the day with private lessons and other exercises. Within a fiveday period they will organize ensembles and perform a complete concert," Stuver said. "In the evenings we have lighter, fun things planned for them. This film is a way for them to enjoy themselves and relax a little and we thought others might enjoy seeing

NEW YORK — The New Jersey ets, seeking to reverse a series of st-round busts, selected Derrick bleman of Syracuse as the No. 1 pick the NBA draft Wednesday night. Coleman was considered the top prospect in the draft, but questions about his attitude left some doubt the Nets would take him.

Seattle took 6-3 Oregon State point guard Gary Payton and Denver followed with LSU's 6-1 Chris Jackson, a 29-point scorer in his two years in college. Not since Detroit took Isiah Thomas with the No. 2 pick in 1981 has a guard been taken as high as

"I'm a warm, loving kind of guy," Coleman said. "I think most guys from the inner city get a bad rep. At Syracuse, a lot was blown out of proportion."

"They need a couple of players to help them out," he said of the Nets. "Hopefully, I'm one of those."

"I wanted to stay on the West Coast and help Seattle out," Payton said. "They needed a leader and I think they got one. They have so many premier players who can score. I think I can get them the ball."

"I'll have to get used to the altitude," Jackson said, who joins 5-11 Michael Adams in Denver's backcourt. "I think it'll be fun (playing with him). We'll be very quick.'

The Sports Information Departent (SID) at BYU has "five good asons why the Heisman race should d in a Ty.

SID began the job of promoting Ty etmer last December. If successful, etmer will be the first BYU football ayer ever to win the award.

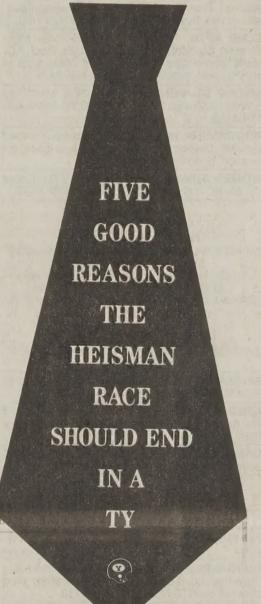

Before the start of last year's Holiy Bowl, SID sent out a promotional ece on Detmer to entice the nation's orts writers to watch the game and pecially Detmer. The piece was in e shape of a tie and read, "here's one you'll like this holiday season." ong with his statistics, the piece ntained a quote from LaVell Edurds which reads, "He is the best arterback in the country. I know at is a lot to say. He is only a sophoore, but I firmly believe that."

Roger Stanton, publisher of Footll News-Basketball Weekly said. our clever mailing piece on your arterback Ty Detmer is one of the st I have ever seen in the 35 years I we been on the scene covering colge football. Our congratulations.... certainly caught our attention."

Val Hale, assistant to the director athletics for public and media relan for BYU said, "It was a gamble, were trying to get sports writers watch the game. The game was on tional television and we were playr against a legitimate team. People vays say, "Well, your quarterbacks t impressive numbers but they're ways playing against teams that en't any good." We figured that if had a good game, we'd get a leg up the competition.

"Although BYU lost the game, tmer was impressive against a top tch team." The nation had a chance see Detmer. This year, the nation

"I don't believe in fancy campaigns. We can help it along but it wasn't a big push for national attention. Our only expense was a three minute video release with highlights and statistics, especially on the west coast," said Steve Buzzard, sports information director at Oklahoma State University. When asked about Detmer's chances given our location, "have you ever been to Stillwater, Oklahoma? Many people don't even have television sets in this part of the country," Buzzard

Although Jim McMahon held numerous NCAA records, he lost the trophy to Marcus Allen in 1981. BYU lacked credibility. That particular season BYU was never on national television, Hale said, "those day's are pretty much passed. We're in a position where people are watching us."

At the football writers annual convention in Dallas, SID handed out a second tie (left). "Just another little subtle thing that has quotes and stats. You don't want to be too offensive or overly pushy," Hale said.

The latest tie quotes Penn State's Joe Paterno as saying, "Dan Marino

"Some people think you can promote your way into a Heisman Trophy. Sportswriters are generally smart enough to know that hey, this guy either deserves it or he doesn't. I think the most important thing for fans and others to remember is that our office can do so much, the rest is up to Ty. The reason he is getting so much publicity is mainly because he deserves it, he has earned it out on the field," Hale said.

Doctors warn about tick bites; all cases should be treated

This summer campers and hikers are being educated on the symptoms and prevention of Lyme disease, said a state health official.

"Lyme disease is caused by a bacterial spirochete that is transmitted by the bite of a small tick called the Ixodes tick," said Dr. David J. Thurman, medical epidemiologist for the Utah Department of Health.

According to information released by the department, the disease has spread to 34 states since the first cases were identified in Lyme, Conn., in 1974. The disease occurs in areas with a high population of deer and mice, on which the ticks live. Thurman said although only four cases of Lyme disease have been officially reported in Utah, more cases have been investigated.

Hypertension is not only for the old

By NINE'L C. ELMONT Universe Staff Writer

A myth that only elderly people suffer from high blood pressure could result in problems for younger people, said a representative for the American Heart Association, Utah affiliate.

"More than 6 million people over the age of six suffer from high blood pressure," said Steve Largent, director of programs and communication for the association.

He said young people should watch their diets now before it gets to be a problem. "Once a person gets high blood pressure it can never be cured. Instead, they will have to learn to control it for the rest of their lives." he said.

Kent W. Jones, M.D., president of the association, said, "One of the first steps in lowering high blood pressure in some people is taking the salt shaker off the table.'

Several students on campus are being followed for high blood pressure, said Dr. Gus Hoffman at the McDonald Health Center.

He suggested everyone carefully watch their cholesterol and fat levels and get their blood pressure checked periodically.

It is recommended that one's sodium intake not exceed 3,000 milligrams per day. Comparatively, only one-half teaspoon of table salt contains 1,000 milligrams of sodium.

UDOT to post business info for travelers

Motorists will no longer have to sniff out the path to their favorite fast food grill or wonder if the gas station they are partial to can be found at the next freeway exit as they travel through Utah, said a spokesman for the Utah Department of Transporta-

Kim Morris said motorist-related information signs will be posted beginning mid-July on Utah's 570 miles of interstate highways.

UDOT has entered into an agreement with Utah Logos, Inc. to provide traveler information signs throughout the interstate highway system, he said.

The signs will identify "motoristrelated" businesses by their logos, he

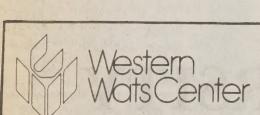

Motorist-related businesses, which will be included on the signs, are gas stations, campgrounds, motels, hotels, restaurants and fast food chains, UDOT received pressure from the Utah Legislature the past couple of years to provide traveler information signs, Morris said. "They expressed a lot of interest in it," he said.

Similar sign programs have been installed in other states, such as Idaho, Nebraska and Oklahoma, Mor-

Under the guidelines of the program, businesses qualifying as "motorist-related" may purchase space on information signs located near freeway interchanges, he said.

Morris said the program will be of no cost to UDOT. Initial marketing of the signs has begun in the Provo/ Orem area, he said.

Experts predict major earthquake in Brigham City

By JILL BARTHOLOMEW Universe Staff Writer

There is something momentously big building up in the Wasatch Fault said a BYU earthquake specialist recently. Leslie Youd, professor of Civil Engineering, said the lack of activity along the Wasatch Fault means a major earthquake is in store for those living in the fault area.

U.S. Geological Survey expert David Schwartz said in an Associated Press report that the next major earthquake to strike along the Wasatch Front likely will occur in Brigham City, which is located 101 miles north of Provo.

Within the next 50 to 100 years, Brigham City has an 8 to 15 percent probability of experiencing a significant earthquake, and a 30 to 50 percent probability within the next 100 years, Schwartz said in the report. "That is a very high probability. It is higher than chance," said Schwartz, who analyzed the Oct. 17, 1989, Loma Prieta earthquake in the Youd said a major earthquake in Brigham City would mean for Provo residents that structurally weak or old buildings may be destroyed but that "one would expect very little damage to

structures that are sound." "There will be a tendency to get stronger ground motions out by the lake and other areas lined by soft sediments," Youd said. "Large earthquakes tend to repeat in this area in inter-

There are not many small earthquakes relieving the strain along the Wasatch Front, Youd said. The likely maximum magnitude of such an earthquake would reach 7.5 on the Richter

However, according to the AP report, Schwartz predicted "large-scale, widespread" damage on the Wasatch Front if a quake the size of the Loma Prieta earthquake (7.1) occurred anywhere along the fault.

Youd said Schwartz' prediction doesn't mean a large earthquake is not going to occur anywhere else.

If a major earthquake were to occur in the Provo area there would be significant damage costing millions, possibly billions of dollars, Youd said.

Director of the University of Utah Seismographic Stations, Walter Arabasz said the timing of the big quake is uncertain, but he would put money on a major one in Brigham City.

"The parts of the Wasatch Fault that are the most active go from Brigham City to Nephi," Arabasz said. "Along that course, there is only one part that hasn't broken within the last 1,500 years or so. That part is the segment in Brigham City."

Based on the pattern, specialists can make predictions as to what will happen next, Ara-

"Geologists have essentially depicted the pattern of (earthquake) occurrences during the last 6,000 years.

Earthquake specialists are working on a program for Utah lawmakers to consider next year as a comprehensive bill, said Arabasz.

"We are just in the process of consensus building," he said. The program will address earthquake hazards and land development, earthquake response and education and dealing with seismic vulnerability of structures, Arabasz said. "We have a long way to go" to be prepared for a major earthquake in Utah, he said.
